We the Guardians

We are going through a transformation, and all transformations are painful. Like the caterpillar that turns into a butterfly, we are experiencing a spiritual metamorphosis, but we are still in the 'cocoon phase'. We want to break free, we want to leave the darkness behind and fly into the light. We can already feel our wings, we can imagine what it must be like to fly, but we are still caught up between the two realities.

We let go of people in our lives that cannot even see what we are going through and we embrace new people that are on the same page. Laura Aboli
